I Introduction

1. Purpose of sector classification

This guide describes the institutional sector classification to be applied by organisations that participate in the South African Reserve Bank (SARB) surveys which are used in the compilation and publication of macroeconomic statistics. For instance, in terms of regulation 59(4) as published in the Government Gazette No. 35950 of 12 December 2012, as amended from time to time, banks shall provide an institutional breakdown of liabilities and assets (e.g. Form BA 900) in accordance with the information contained in this guide. Members of the formal exchanges also classify their clients who participate in trades in accordance with the framework set by the guide (see Annexure D). The guide provides information on the institutional sector classification of transactors that engage in economic activity such as production, consumption, saving and investment, paying particular attention to the classification of issuers and holders of securities, recipients and suppliers of credit, and buyers and sellers of financial assets.

The Institutional Sector Classification Guide for South Africa divides institutional sectors according to the guidelines of the 2008 System of National Accounts (SNA). The SNA consists of a coherent, consistent and integrated set of macroeconomic accounts with balance sheets and tables based on a set of internationally agreed concepts, definitions, classifications and accounting rules. A core element of this publication is the Institutional Sector Classification which is presented in Section II.

The Economic Research and Statistics Department of the SARB regularly collects financial data in respect of the major institutional sectors from financial institutions such as banks, insurers and pension funds; non-financial institutions; and other organisations in the public and the private sector. This information is used to compile macroeconomic accounts for the analysis of, inter alia, the sectoral balance sheets, the flow of funds between sectors, and establishing which sectors require which types of financing and which sectors provide in these needs.

To enable the reader to get an overview of the public sector at a glance, all the public sector institutions contained in the Institutional Sector Classification Guide for South Africa have been repeated in Annexure A. The lists of institutions relating to the public sector in Annexure A serve as the reference list of 'RSA public sector bodies' for the purposes of the regulations relating to counterparty capital adequacy risk-weighting in terms of the Mutual Banks Act 124 of 1993 and the Banks Act 94 of 1990. The original source of the lists of the public sector institutional units is the Constitution of the Republic of South Africa Act 108 of 1996 and the Public Finance Management Act 1 of 1999 as amended by Act 29 of 1999, also published at www.treasury.gov.za.

The economic activities in which institutional sectors or units engage can be further classified according to the Standard Industrial Classification of all Economic Activities (SIC), which is presented in Annexure C, Table C1 and Table C2, of this publication.

2. Institutional units and sectors

The total economy consists of institutional sectors which are an aggregation of institutional units. An institutional unit is an economic entity that can in its own right own assets, incur liabilities and engage in economic activity and transactions with other entities. Institutional units are either legal or social entities, or households, and can be divided between resident and non-resident units. An institutional unit is a resident of the Republic of South Africa when it has a centre of economic interest in South Africa, that is, when it has premises within the economic territory of South Africa from where it engages or intends to engage indefinitely or over a finite but long period (normally more than one year) in significant economic activity.

All resident institutional units are grouped into four main mutually exclusive institutional sectors on the basis of similarity of principal economic objectives, functions and behaviour. These institutional sectors are the:

- i. financial corporate sector;
- ii. non-financial corporate sector;
- iii. general government sector (including social security funds); and
- iv. household sector (including non-profit institutions serving households).

Corporations in the financial and non-financial sectors are resident institutional units whose principal activity is the market production of goods and services at economically significant prices with the intent to generate a profit or financial gain for their shareholders. Shareholders collectively own these institutional units and have the authority to appoint directors responsible for their general management. Quasi-corporations are unincorporated enterprises, each with their own separate set of financial accounts, and are treated as corporations and classified as institutional units separate from the units to which they legally belong. Therefore, quasi-corporations owned by households or government units are grouped with corporations in the financial or non-financial corporate sectors. In compiling the financial corporate sector, the Monetary and Financial Statistics Manual (MFSM) is used, which provides a set of tools for identifying, classifying and recording stocks and flows of financial assets and liabilities.

Institutional units in the general government sector are unique legal entities established by the political process with legislative, judicial or executive authority over other units within a given area. The general government sector consists of the institutional units of central, provincial and local government inclusive of:

- social security funds at all levels of government; and
- non-market, non-profit institutions that are controlled and mainly financed by government units.

However, general government excludes public corporations, even when government units own all the equity of such corporations, and also excludes quasi-corporations owned and controlled by government units. Unincorporated enterprises owned by government units that are not quasi-corporations (and therefore do not have separate accounts) remain an integral part of those government units and are therefore included in the general government sector. In order to analyse the economic impact of the general government, the principles of the Government Finance Statistics Manual (GFS Manual) are applied. The primary purpose of the GFS Manual is to provide a comprehensive, conceptual and accounting framework suitable for analysing and evaluating fiscal policy, especially the performance of the general government sector and the broader public sector of any country.

A household is an individual or small group of individuals who share the same living accommodation, and pool some or all of their income and wealth while consuming goods and services such as housing and food collectively. Defined as an institutional sector, the household sector includes unincorporated business enterprises, without their own separate sets of financial accounts, owned by households, whether market producers or producing for own final use. Only those household-owned unincorporated market enterprises that constitute quasi-corporations, since they have their own separate sets of financial accounts, are treated as separate institutional units.

All resident institutional units are also grouped into the private sector and the public sector. The private sector consists of all resident institutional units not controlled or owned by institutional units in the general government sector. The public sector consists of all institutional units in the general government sector, and corporate sector institutional units in the financial and non-financial sectors owned or controlled by units in the general government sector. The public sector consists of the:

- public financial corporate sector;
- public non-financial corporate sector; and
- general government sector.

To complete the set of macroeconomic accounts, economic activity and transactions between resident and non-resident units need to be recorded. From an accounting perspective it is convenient to describe the rest of the world as an institutional sector. Non-resident institutional units that transact with resident institutional units are grouped into the foreign sector or the rest of the world. The Balance of Payments (BoP), which is a statistical statement that systematically summarises, for a specific period, the economic transactions of an economy with the rest of the world, is compiled to present this information.

II Institutional Sector Classification

1. Financial corporate sector

The financial corporate sector includes all privately and publicly owned resident institutional units whose principal activity is financial intermediation or auxiliary financial activities related to financial intermediation. It includes non-profit institutions engaged in market production of a financial nature. Financial intermediation is the incurrence of own-account liabilities to acquire financial assets through engaging in financial transactions, and channelling funds from lenders to borrowers. The financial sector consists of the following institutional units:

1.1 Monetary authority (public sector)

The monetary authority consists of the SARB, the central bank of South Africa, governed in terms of the South African Reserve Bank Act 90 of 1989, as amended, and its subsidiary, the Corporation for Public Deposits, governed in terms of the Corporation for Public Deposits Act 46 of 1984. The central bank, among other things, issues banknotes and coin, conducts monetary policy, provides credit to banks, manages South Africa's foreign exchange reserves, supervises and regulates the banking sector, and acts as lender of last resort to the banking system. The Corporation for Public Deposits accepts call deposits from the public sector and invests the funds in short-term money market instruments, including Treasury bills.

1.2 Banks¹

A bank is a public company (Limited) registered as a bank in terms of the Banks Act 94 of 1990. The business of a bank is the solicitation and advertising for, and the acceptance of, deposits from the general public on a regular basis and the utilisation of deposits accepted. For the full definition of the 'business of a bank' see the Banks Act 94 of 1990.

1.3.3.2 Public sector pension and provident funds (September 2016)

Public sector pension and provident funds are autonomous pension funds controlled and managed by institutional units in the public sector, which are not subject to regulation and supervision in terms of the Pension Funds Act, but were established in terms of specific provisions in other statutes. Public sector pension and provident funds in this guide include the following official funds administered by National Treasury, the Post Office, Telkom and Transnet:

Government Employees Pension Fund (GEPF) – www.gepf.co.za	Transnet Retirement Fund
Post Office Pension Fund	Transnet Second Defined Benefit Pension Fund
Telkom Retirement Fund	Transport Pension Fund

1.4 Other financial intermediaries

Other financial intermediaries raise funds – but not in the form of deposits – and then acquire financial assets. These institutions are involved in the financing of investment and capital formation.

1.4.1 Collective investment schemes

Collective investment schemes include schemes that invest in securities, property and participation bonds in terms of the Collective Investment Schemes Control Act 45 of 2002.

1.4.1.1 Money market securities unit trusts (September 2016)

The business of a money market unit trust (open-end trust) entails the pooling of investors' funds with a manager for investment on their behalf in a spread of predominantly money market instruments.

1.4.1.2 Non-money market securities unit trusts (September 2016)

The business of a non-money market unit trust (open-end trust) entails the pooling of investors' funds with a manager for investment on their behalf in a spread of assets such as bonds, shares, units of other unit trusts and money market instruments. In this instance, money market instruments are not the dominant type of securities held.

1.4.3 Special purpose entities (September 2016)

The type of special purpose entity (SPE) referred to is a legal entity that holds assets for securitisation and issues debt securities. It is normally a 'Limited' company, created to fulfil a narrow, specific or sometimes temporary objective. An SPE is usually owned by the entity on whose behalf it was established. The Companies Act 71 of 2008 ensures that the general public is alerted to these companies' restricted capacity by requiring that such a company's name be immediately followed by the term (RF), which stands for 'ring-fenced'.

1.4.4.1 Public Investment Corporation (PIC)

The entity Public Investment Corporation (PIC) invests funds on behalf of public sector entities, including the Government Employees Pension Fund. The PIC is a public entity that was established as a corporation on 1 April 2005 in accordance with the Public Investment Corporation Act 23 of 2004 and is regulated in terms of the Public Finance Management Act 1 of 1999 as amended by Act 29 of 1999. The PIC is a state-owned entity and also operates under the Financial Advisory and Intermediary Services Act 37 of 2002.

Before its establishment as a corporation, the PIC was known as the 'Public Investment Commissioners', also abbreviated as the PIC.

1.4.5.2 Other financial holding companies

This can be defined as holding companies where the predominant activity of the group of companies whose shares are held is of a financial, insurance or financial auxiliary nature, which includes real estate, general finance services and investment instruments, excluding those under number 1.4.5.1. It includes listed and unlisted financial holding companies.

1.4.5.3 Non-financial holding companies

Non-financial holding companies hold shares in a group of subsidiary companies where the majority of the activities of the companies in the group are non-financial in nature; the principal activity of the holding company owns the group. It includes listed and unlisted non-financial companies.

² The list contains the latest information as published in the Bank Supervision Department Annual Report 2015.

1.5 Financial auxiliaries

Financial auxiliaries are institutions such as brokers whose primary activity is to facilitate financial intermediation, but who do not primarily perform an intermediation role themselves. Most members of formal exchanges can be classified as financial auxiliaries. However, some members such as banks and cooperatives perform another activity as a primary activity, and are thus classified under the institutional sector that corresponds with their primary activity.

1.5.1 Private sector financial auxiliaries

1.5.1.1 Members of the formal exchanges³

The JSE Limited (JSE) is a licensed stock exchange in South Africa, governed in terms of the Financial Markets Act 19 of 2012, where members of the JSE buy and sell securities on behalf of clients as agent or principal. The JSE comprises an equity, equity derivatives, commodity derivatives, currency derivatives and interest rate market. JSE membership is available for the following categories: equity, derivatives and bonds. Only members whose primary activity is of a financial auxiliary nature are classified here.

1.5.2 Public sector financial auxiliaries

This refers to public sector financial auxiliaries such as financial supervisory authorities and includes the Financial Services Board. However, the SARB's supervisory functions fall under number 1.1 as part of the monetary authority.

2. Non-financial corporate sector

The non-financial corporate sector includes all resident privately and publicly owned institutional units whose principal activity is the production of goods and non-financial services. The non-financial corporate sector consists of the following institutional units:

2.1 Private non-financial corporate sector

Private sector corporations are companies that were previously registered under the Republic of South Africa's Companies Act 61 of 1973, and more recently in terms of the Companies Act 71 of 2008. Private sector non-financial companies are legal entities separate from their owners and are principally engaged in the production of market goods and non-financial services at economically significant prices with the intent to generate a profit or financial gain for the shareholders.

2.1.1 Non-financial companies

Non-financial companies can be listed or unlisted. The non-financial companies listed can have a singular or dual listing on the JSE Limited and on another exchange, but domiciled in South Africa. A list of non-financial companies can be accessed from the following websites: <http://www.ciproza.co.za> and www.jse.co.za

2.1.2 Non-profit institutions serving the non-financial corporate sector

Non-profit institutions are legal entities engaged in the production of goods and services without the intent to generate income or financial gain directly for those that finance or control them. Examples of this kind of institution are the South African Chamber of Business (SACOB) and all industry associations serving the non-financial corporate sector. The Companies Act 71 of 2008 stipulates that a non-profit institution's name needs to be followed by the abbreviation 'NPC'.

2.1.3 Cooperatives

Cooperatives are legal entities created by producers for the purpose of marketing collective output, and any profits raised are distributed in accordance with agreed rules.

2.1.4 Close corporations

Close corporations are private sector entities registered under the Close Corporation Act 69 of 1984, and are obliged to incorporate the abbreviation 'CC' as the last entry in their name. The new Companies Act 71 of 2008 stipulates that it will not be possible to register any new close corporation, nor may companies be converted into a close corporation. A close corporation currently in existence will be able to exist indefinitely, and the Close Corporation Act will be brought in line with legislation on private companies. Where a close corporation is primarily involved in financial activity, it should be classified under the relevant grouping within the financial corporate sector.

2.1.5 Other private sector companies

This classification includes all other companies in the private sector previously registered under the Companies Act 61 of 1973, or more recently under the Companies Act 71 of 2008 (i.e. organisations that are required by law to incorporate the abbreviation(s) '(Pty) Limited' or 'Inc' as the last entry/entries in their names), but excludes all institutions listed in the financial sector.

2.2 Public non-financial corporate sector

The public non-financial corporate sector consists of corporations where the principal activity is the production of market goods and non-financial services, and these institutional units are owned or controlled by units in the general government sector. The Companies Act 71 of 2008 specifies that a state-owned company be followed by the abbreviation 'SOC Limited'.

Identification of the general government and public sectors⁵: a decision tree for government units and other public units

The procedure for evaluating economic entities in an economy and grouping them inside or outside the public sector and its subsectors is presented in the form of a decision tree in Figure 2 on page 44.

The starting point for sectorising an economy is to identify the residency of entities operating in the economy. For each resident entity, the following steps should be taken:

- Identify whether the entity constitutes an institutional unit. It is capable, in its own right, of owning assets, incurring liabilities and engaging in economic activities and transactions with other entities? If not, the entity should be classified with the unit that controls it.
- Identify whether the institutional unit belongs in the private sector or in the public sector. This involves determining whether the unit is a government unit or if it is controlled by a government unit or public corporation. If so, it is a public unit and part of the public sector. If not, it is part of the private sector.
- Determine for each public sector unit whether it is a market or non-market producer. Does it dispose of all or most of its output at economically significant prices?
- If it is a market producer, it is to be classified as a public corporation.
- If it is a non-market producer, it is necessary to determine whether the unit includes any unincorporated activity that should be considered to be a quasi-corporation.
 - If so, the quasi-corporation should be classified as a public corporation.
 - If not, the unit is a general government unit and should be classified in the general government sector.
- Determine for each public corporation (and public quasi-corporation) whether it provides financial services.
 - If so, it is a public financial corporation.
 - If not, it is a public non-financial corporation.

3. General government sector

The general government sector consists of institutional units that are legal entities with political responsibilities established through the political process, mainly to produce non-market goods and services for individual and public consumption, and to redistribute income and wealth. These institutional units invest in assets and fund activities by levying taxes and issuing financial instruments. Some units owned by units in the general government sector may also be engaged in the production of goods and services for which economically significant prices are charged.

3.1 Central government

Central government consists of national government departments and ministries, and institutional units not classified as quasi-corporations that are owned by central government. Central government institutional units are established in terms of the following legislation:

- The Constitution of the Republic of South Africa Act 108 of 1996.

3.1.2 National extra-budgetary institutions (as at 31 March 2016)

The extra-budgetary institutions produce goods and services for government or sell goods and services to the public on behalf of government. An extra-budgetary institution may be a national public entity and consists of a board, commission, fund or other entity that is not classified as a quasi-corporation and is:

- established in terms of national legislation and mainly serves the government;
- fully or substantially funded either from the National Revenue Fund, or by way of a tax, levy or other money imposed in terms of national legislation; and
- accountable to Parliament.

4. Household sector

A household consists of an individual or small group of individuals who share the same living accommodation, and pool some or all of their income and wealth while consuming goods and services collectively. The household sector consists of the following institutional units:

4.1 Households

Individuals are members of a household and are not treated as separate institutional units.

4.2 Unincorporated business enterprises of households

Unincorporated business enterprises of households comprise households that engage in market production as one-man businesses or sole proprietorships or partnerships. They are legal entities but are not organised in the form of a company, and the household and business accounts cannot be separated. The one-man business or sole proprietorship can be with or without employees, with the latter being own-account workers.

4.3 Non-profit institutions serving households

Non-profit institutions serving households (NPISHs) are legal or social entities that provide goods and services to households free of charge or at economically insignificant prices, but that are neither controlled nor mainly financed by government. NPISHs include welfare organisations, aid societies, clubs, non-profit hospitals and schools, churches, trade unions, stokvels, political parties and such companies previously registered under Section 21 of the Companies Act 61 of 1973, and now according to the new Companies Act 71 of 2008 the name should be followed by the abbreviation 'NPC'.

4.4 Private trusts

Private trusts are assets of individuals and estates administered by, among others, banks, trust companies and attorneys on their behalf.

4.5 Friendly societies (December 2014)

Friendly societies are governed in terms of the Friendly Societies Act 25 of 1956. A friendly society can be defined as a non-profit organisation, or formal mutual organisation, or association of persons existing with the purpose of providing its members or their relatives with benefits, relief or maintenance for minors, old age, widowhood or illness. Such relief could include payment of a sum of money upon the death of members, for the insurance of tools used in a trade, for unemployment benefits, or for education or training of members or their children. There were 201 friendly societies registered under the Friendly Societies Act as at 31 December 2014, 11 of which were in the process of liquidation.

5. Foreign sector/rest of the world

Non-resident institutional units that transact with resident institutional units are grouped into the foreign sector or the rest of the world. The classification of the foreign sector is based on the distinction between residents and non-residents. The concept of residency is based on the centre of economic interest and not on nationality or purely legal criteria. An institutional unit is considered to be a resident of a country when it has an economic interest in a country, that is, when it has a location (dwelling or premises) within the economic territory of a country from where it intends to engage indefinitely or over a finite but lengthy period of time (longer than a year) in economic activity on a significant scale. The economic territory of a country consists of the geographic territory administered by government within which persons, goods and capital move freely, inclusive of airspace, territorial waters and enclaves.

An institutional unit or enterprise is therefore a resident of the Republic of South Africa when it has an economic interest in South Africa, that is, when it has premises within the economic territory of South Africa from where it engages or intends to engage indefinitely or over a finite but lengthy period of time in significant economic activity in South Africa. The foreign sector or non-residents could similarly be defined as institutional units or enterprises with a centre of economic interest outside the borders of the Republic of South Africa.

Branches and subsidiaries of foreign enterprises domiciled in South Africa are therefore classified as resident institutional units. In this instance, the foreign enterprise or non-resident owner is classified as part of the foreign sector, while the foreign-owned subsidiary or branch is classified as a South African resident. By contrast, branches and subsidiaries of South African companies domiciled in the rest of world are classified as non-resident or part of the foreign sector.

5.1 Foreign financial corporate sector (October 2016)

5.1.1 Financial companies listed on the JSE Limited and classified as non-resident

Financial companies (banks, insurance companies, financial services – which include real-estate and general finance services – and investment instruments) with a dual listing, both on the JSE Limited and on another exchange, but domiciled in a country other than the Republic of South Africa are classified as non-resident.

5.1.2 Foreign banks⁶

A foreign bank is an institution lawfully established in a country other than the Republic of South Africa that conducts the business of a bank in another country.

5.1.3 Other foreign financial corporations (October 2016)

Other foreign financial corporations are lawfully established institutions in a country other than the Republic of South Africa that conduct financial business, with names ending, for instance, with 'plc', which stands for 'Public Limited Company' or 'Inc.', which stands for 'Incorporated'.

Annexure C: Standard Industrial Classification of all Economic Activities

An institutional unit (an enterprise such as a company) may be engaged in different kinds of production activities in different locations, producing various kinds of goods and services. For the analysis of production, it is necessary to use a more homogeneous unit than an enterprise. The unit is an establishment, defined as an enterprise or part of an enterprise situated in one location and engaged in mainly one type of production activity, which is its principal activity. An establishment can also be engaged in secondary activities which generate a minor part of its production, or ancillary activities which are production not intended for use outside the enterprise. An enterprise can consist of more than one establishment, but an establishment can belong to only one enterprise.

Based on the type of activity described in terms of a set of inputs, a production process and a set of outputs, establishments are grouped together into industries. An industry is defined as a group of establishments engaged in the same, or similar, kinds of production activity. Industries are classified according to the 1993 edition of the Standard Industrial Classification of all Economic Activities (SIC). The SIC is based on the 1990 edition of the International Standard Industrial Classification (ISIC), with suitable adaptations for local conditions. The SIC classification refers to the principal activity of establishments.

It is possible to classify institutional units by institutional sector class and by standard industrial class. However, institutional units can only broadly be classified into industries according to their principal class of product produced or service rendered. An example of the SIC classification of institutional units by organisation reporting to the SARB is the classification by banks of loans, advances and discounts according to major divisions, as provided by banks on returns to the Registrar of Banks. The major divisions (one-digit level) and divisions (two-digit level) of the SIC are shown in Table C1.

In the case of individuals and non-producing households, there is no SIC classification as the SIC caters only for producing units. To address this problem, sector 0 of the SIC is further subdivided into divisions (two-digit level), major groups (three-digit level) and groups (four-digit level), as indicated in Table C2, for instance, where a reporting organisation needs to assign SIC codes to all its counterparties.

The complete SIC can be obtained from:

8 The industries are classified according to the Standard Industrial Classification of all Economic Activities (SIC), fifth edition. It is based on the third revision of the International Standard Industrial Classification of all Economic Activities (ISIC), with suitable adaptations for local conditions.
